HAVAS

Madrid, 3rd—The Minister of War has condemned General Salzedo to 2 months' arrest for having given his adhesion to the letter published by General Daban. The Senate is still discussing the affair.

Rome, 5th—A grand banquet will be given on Tuesday the 15th in Naples by the Liberal Deputies to all the notable men of the Opposition.

Vienna, 5th—In Court circles it is asserted that the marriage of Archiduque Francis, the Emperor's nephew, with the Princess Stephanie, widow of the late Crown Prince Rudolph, is finally resolved on.

GALVESTON.

Berlin, 3rd—The "Progressists' Journal" does not favor the expedition in favor of Emin. They ask the Government why it should favor it when the Reichstag has condemned it.

London, 3rd—The Representative of Servia leaves to-morrow for Sofia. A rupture between Servia and Bulgaria is imminent. It is stated that this "pressure" has been caused by Russia.

Brussels, 3rd—The Anti-slave Committee have agreed to increase gradually for a limited time the duties on alcohol in Africa.

Lisbon 3rd—The Cabinet has again been reformed:
Serpa Fimental, Minister of War.
Orry, Marine and Justice.
Loporaz, Interior.
Veretilena, Colonies.
Branco, Finance.
Arena, Public Works.
Reveiro, Foreign Affairs.

London, 4th—Advices from St. Petersburg report affairs very serious in Russia. It is stated that the Czar is suffering from nervous fever.

The project for the annexation of Finland by Russia has been sacredly received Disturbances anticipated.

Paris, 4th—40 Boulgists have started for Jersey to hold a conference with Boulanger.

Vienna 14th—Advices from Berlin state The Minister of War proposes to reconcile the Democratic party with Bismarck, and that the Emperor has taken up the ideas of the Socialists Lassalle and Jaine. The telegram compares the Emperor with Constantine the Great and adds that it is he who has started the new socialistic doctrine that will save the thrones of Europe which are now about to fall.

St. Petersburg, 4th—The students have abandoned the idea of public meetings on account of reduced numbers. A number of students state that this agitation will seriously affect education. The Czar is so vexed with late disturbances that he threatens to close all the principal educational establishmenes for a year.

London, 4th—Telegrams from St. Petersburg state that all the Universities in Russia have been closed. The St. Petersburg students blame General Gusser. The Chief of Police went to the University to quell the disorder. The students turned him out.

Paris, 4th—The Minister of Colonies in an interview stated "France in Dahomey has sufficient forces to fight. She does not require more. In a short time she will attack Whydah a city on the coast, where the Dahomiees have obtained their arms from."

Constantinople, 4th—The Sultan has signed the decree for opening negotiations regarding the retirement of the English from Egypt.

It is stated that Lord Salisbury and the Turkish Ambassador in London will immediately take up the matter.

WEST COAST TELEGRAMS

Valparaiso, 5th—Yesterday the ex-intendente of this province and present Deputy for Limache, Don Tomas Eastman, died.

The Chief of the Committee for the reception of the Brazilian Minister has invited all the workmens' societies of the city and towns to meet to-morrow at the mole at 11 a.m. to accompany Sr. Barros de Cavalcanti to his rooms at the France Hotel. A grand reception will take place at night, music etc.

THE CRISIS.

We commend to the attention of our readers the following extracts from Mr. Mc Culloch's reply to Mr. Payne, dated Washington, January 1890. Those who comprehend the full bearing of the present crisis in the Plate will note a similarity of causes, effects, disasters and ruin between the great U. S. crisis in 1837 and the River Plate crisis of 1890. Mr Mc Culloch, in speaking of the U. S. crisis in 1817 and a few following years says:

Of these reverses I have only to say that if I have read correctly the financial history of that period these reverses were not the result of the changes of the tariff, but of the tide of speculation which swept over the country near the close of the war and at its termination, diminishing industry and plunging people into debt. These reverses, like those of later days, were inevitable, and they would have been of equal severity if the war tariff had been continued. The seeds of financial trouble had been sowed broadcast before the tariff was touched, and they bore legitimate fruits; they were, in fact, but a repetition of what occurred at the close of the revolutionary war, when there was no tariff.

THE REVERSES OF 1837.

"Of these reverses and all subsequent ones I can speak advisedly, because I held positions of financial responsibility and had personal interests at stake. I was in 1837, and had been for a considerable time the manager of the branch at Fort Wayne and a member of the Board of Control of the State Bank of Indiana. Mr. Blaine's statement that "the years 1834 5 6 were distinguished for all manner of business hazard" but faintly describes them. They were years, especially 1836, of the wildest speculation. In the East it was varied in character, but its dangerous elements were excessive credits, and there were few things that could be bought or sold that were not affected by it.

"In the West it was confined to wild lands and lands unimproved and town lots, many of which never had any existence except upon the recorded plats. It was speculation similar to that in the timber lands of Maine a few years before. Lands bought of the Government at $1.25 per acre were soon sold on credit at $4, $5, and in some cases $10. Hundreds of tracts were laid off in town lots where the original forests were still standing. What took place under my own observation seems now too absurd to have been real. On the Maumee River, from its mouth on Lake Erie, there was for miles a succession of towns. Some of them, like Maumee City, Perrysburg, Manhattan and Toledo, were realities, but most of them existed upon paper only. In the spring of 1836 a young man whom I met at Maumee City said to me that he had made a great deal of money in a few months. To my inquiry how he had made it, he replied, by buying and selling lots. "Maumee City," he said, "lies, as you know, at the foot of the Rapids, and is destined to be one of the largest cities of the West; property is rising rapidly in value, and I am buying and selling every day."

"How did you raise the money to commence with?"

"Oh, very little money is required in this business. I pay when I buy, and I require when I sell a lot a few dollars to bind the bargain; but nearly everything is done upon credit."

"On my way from New York to Fort Wayne, in the same year, I stopped over night at a small hotel in Toledo. After dinner I noticed there was a gathering of gentlemen in the parlor, and in the course of the evening I was waited upon by one whom I knew and invited to join it. Our rule, said he, is to admit no one to these meetings who is not worth $100,000. As you are a banker, you must be worth at least that. This was far from being the fact, but I accepted the invitation. The company consisted of gentlemen some of whom I knew personally and others by reputation. They were politicians, scholars, writers, and one or two of them were authors of considerable renown, but not one was there whom I recognized as being engaged in regular business pursuits. It was a sort of private exchange, at which the members made themselves rich by buying and selling to each other lands and town lots. There was at times a good deal of excitement, much like that which is witnessed in the New York Stock Exchange. When the meeting closed everyone felt that he was richer than when it opened. In a few brief months there was not one of these hundred-thousand-dollar men who was worth a hundred thousand cents.

RESULTS OF THE SPECULATIVE MANIA.

"The same speculative mania prevailed to some extent all over the country. It originated in unwise extension of the credit system, which was mainly the result of the removal of the Government deposits from the United States Bank and the placing of them in the State banks. When the deposits were removed there was among conservative men great apprehension that the effect would be severe financial trouble. To prevent this it seemed to be the understanding between the Secretary of the Treasury, acting under the direction of the President and the banks—pet banks as they were called—that as they had been favored by the Government in the use of the public moneys, they should deal liberally with their customers. This they did, and, as their capitals were sufficient to supply the demands of healthy business, the loans of the Government deposits were made to men who were engaged in speculative enterprises. Then, too, many of the States were engaged in works of internal improvement, and were spending large amounts of money which they had obtained by sales of their bonds in Europe.

In addition to the large volumes of currency thus put into circulation a bank under the name of the Pennsylvania Bank of the United States was chartered by Pennsylvania, as the successor to the United States Bank, with the same capital and mostly the same managers, which not only loaned its money in a manner which savored of recklessness, but bought large quantities of cotton on its own account. Never were credits so easily obtained nor so unwisely used; never to the superficial observer had the country been so prosperous.

In the meantime, however, industry was declining and all kinds of agricultural productions were commanding exorbitant prices. Wheat went up from 1 to 2 dollars a bushel, and cotton from 7 to 15 cents a pound. A speculative fever everywhere prevailed similar in character, and as much more disastrous in consequences as it was wider in extent, to the South Sea bubble in England. Conservative men, strangely enough, as well as adventurers, were its abettors and its victims. Banking institutions, and especially the Government depositories, were in a great measure responsible for it.

Mr. McCulloch's remarks on the United States crisis in 1857 we hold for another chapter.

A DANGEROUS ELEMENT.

Not sufficient importance, to our mind, has been given to the recent disturbances in Mendoza where, under the shadow of the Andes and on the occasion of the official welcoming of Governor Marcos Juarez, a handful of students headed by a patriotic professor of the National College openly hooted H.E. and carried their political feelings to the extent of firing blank cartridges and frightening the life out of the numerous and pacific suite. Hostile manifestations of public opinion are so rare in those quiet latitudes—there is such a charming unanimity in the applause meted out with provincial prodigality to the lucky magnates who have squeezed themselves into the curule-chair—that this youthful ebullition of feeling in the Andine city comes not only as an unexpected indication of a certain freedom of opinion, but moreover as a premonitory sign which must not be overlookeed. Governor Juarez, whom the affection of the Cordobese and the laws of nature have placed so near the Presidential throne, would certainly not have abandoned the endearing scenes of his native Cordoba had he suspected what awaited him at the foot of the Andes. However, like a Prince of the blood and with the claims of a relative, he was justified in expecting that on his person might be cast some reflection at least of the warmth and enthusiasm with which the bellicose Mendocinos might possibly have welcomed a visit from his brother. Under the pleasing influence of these anticipations he thought he would carry Mendoza by assault. He has failed, and why? That is a question of immeasurable political, physiological, climatic, historic profundity.

Governor Juarez is by no means what a popular caricature-paper, with all the bitterness of political animosity, represents him to the ever-careless public, a monster with teeth of anything but North-American elegance, a grim ogre addicted to the harmless game of "tabo" and the indiscriminate use of knife and bank-notes. No. The Governor is the most polished, perhaps the most quiet, certainly the most able man in Cordoba. He has distinguished his administration by a number of public works, and he has very strong claims on the support and affection of the Cordobese. Yet his presence in Mendoza, so far from striking a chord of political sympathy, has roused the ire of a Tyrtæus and his impetuous disciples, and caused quite a storm in the little city. H. E. should have borne in mind that Mendoza can never be shaken in by anything less than an earthquake, and it is fortunate for him that the feeling which upset his official reception did not possess the initial force of the subterranean wave which, not many years ago, reduced a smiling city to ruins. In all countries the inexperience, unreflecting courage and impetuosity of youth are dangers which the cautious statesman should not overlook. But those dangers increase when the emulation which bent the youthful head over Cæsar's Commentaries and the familiar history of the ancients, is displaced by the ambition to seize contemporaneous events and melt them down in the crucible of criticism, and a criticism tinged with an admiration for such heroes as Mutius Scævola, Quintus Curtius, Camillus and others. To what a fearfully dangerous degree this national animosity recently raised in Portugal by the patriotic though imprudent agitation of the students in Lisbon! They burned British merchandise in the streets, and they might have followed out the perilous logic by attacking the British Minister and immolating him on the altar of outraged national dignity. Yes, the student is a dangerous element, doubly dangerous in moments of political commotion, and we must not overlook his importance nor lose respect for him, as we did for our free Banking Act and paper currency, with the results visible everywhere to-day.

The student who has finished campaigning with Roman Generals, whose imagination has tasted the hardships of crossing the Alps with Hannibal and carried victory and consternation to the gates of the eternal city, which he had already overthrown with Brennus, deems himself qualified to pronounce judgment on the grandest events and problems of humanity, and considers his views always the soundest. We can measure his opinions to-day by the manifestations in Mendoza, a forecaste of his political convictions when he gets into philosophy and the higher mathematics and begins to acquire a taste for law or medicine. He is then most dangerous, and, supported by the affection of his mother, his sisters, and in nine and one-half cases out of ten of a sweetheart, he thinks nothing of hissing a Provincial Governor and frightening the wits out of a distinguished and preeminently peaceful party of the aforesaid Governor's friends. Did we wish to digress, we might dwell on the power of the ladies—another very dangerous element in a state, and one which, as the gallant Aristotle emphatically lays down in his treatise on Government, can never be overlooked without causing the ultimate and inevitable dismemberment of society.

Fortunate, indeed, would it be for us if the students of our national colleges, as in many old cities we will not stop to mention, would allow their exuberant feelings to find expression in such harmless practical jokes as the ducking of a policeman, leaving politics out of the question. But look at Berlin, and St. Petersburg and Moscow, where the agitation of students is a serious social danger. We cannot close our eyes to the solemn fact, as in the case of the Russian capital, that the impetuosity of youth and a taste for medecine develop a perilous love of nihilism and irradicable radicalism. Neither let us forget that it was the shout of a Camille Desmoulins that brought to an immediate head a terrible social revolution which the stealing of a necklace had morally hastened.

Had Governor Juarez allowed his superior judgment to dwell on the foregoing historical instances now so singularly borne out by what has occurred under the shadow of the Andes, he would not, as the incarnation of a political idea, have ventured beyond the arid plains of San Luis. These Mendocino students live in a historic ambient. They are close to the battle-fields where San Martin and the Argentine cause so often triumphed, and to the scenes of atrocities of Facundo and Fray Aldao. Their knowledge is as dangerous as the impetuosity of their youth. However, we must travel to learn something, and H. E may derive much benefit from the lesson and the change of scene. If of a drawing-disposition—pardon the phrase—he has countless conclusions to draw. He may become impressed with the singular climatic fact that vines and patriotism thrive on the same soil, and with the physiologic phenomenon that a bold freedom over seeks a mountainous home.

HOLY WEEK REFLECTIONS.

In the absence of business during the three holidays, the whole community appeared to have gone into retreat. Two days, say Thursday and Friday, might have sufficed as a respite to the wear and tear of the daily struggle, but for once, Saturday of Holy Week has been incorporated in the traditional number of expiation days. All honor to the pious and considerate feelings of those who prompted such a welcome addition to the interregnum of Holy Week; it was inspired by the truly melancholy situation of the market, by the deplorable course of the country's affairs, and by a kind of intuition that the disclosures of the week needed some more than ordinary leisure for careful examination and study in that solitude and retreat with which Christianity commemorates the "via crucis" of its divine founder.

Verily, affairs are ripe for expiation. We read in the pages of history of people and races, inspired by some higher ideal than those arising out of our present civilisation with its bitter struggle for fortune, for comforts, for luxuries, resorting to public expressions of self-denial, such as chastened in their belief the mind and the body, to atone for the errors of their collectivity or of their rulers. In times of drought, of flood, of disease, of misfortunes in general, the popular instinct developed into meetings at the Forum, at the Areopagus, in the market places, in the churches, or in squares where the tree of liberty had taken root, before the gates of palaces, or the more humble entrances of townhalls. In those days, public spirit appeared to go hand in hand with the religious spirit, and the affinity that fused both into one aspiration and forged a popular ideal, that resolved itself into a prayer or demand, was more powerful, more essentially national, nay, democratic, and, therefore, more forcible and effective in its expression, than the present weaker methods of making the voice of opinion sound in the vacuum created since public and religious spirit parted company.

These and other reflections are suggested by the fact that the banks, the Bolsa and public buildings were closed for three days by superior orders—a kind of homage to Holy Week, a species of mourning in calamitous times, a public reminder that if Christianity weeps over the memories of 1890 years ago, the people also have cause to sigh over errors that still belong to the present. But for a suspicion of profanity that might be attached to our connection of matters religious with matters financial, we might urge that Holy Week, with its three days of utter stoppage of business, has coincided with a climax of difficulties in our financial life and afforded seventy-two hours for reflection and examination of conscience. We may feel sure that in the offerings of the devout many a prayer has gone forward pleading for better times; we may feel sure that many a cynic or unbeliever has noticed this coincidence and has been struck with the timely woe of the religious commemoration; yet a few, no doubt, above the weakness of belief, far beyond the pinch of misery or the grip of crisis, may have passed these days in pleasure, far from the madding crowd, and intent on amusement. To the former, the great number, and we are one of them, we tender our keen sympathy; to the latter, the few of the gilded circle, we offer our sincere, not envious congratulations, for they appear to us in present times as rare specimens that form a variety in the family of men, at least in crisis-struck B. Ayres.

In days of yore the people would have resorted to fasting, public flagellation, sackcloth, and other acts of abnegation to ward off the misery of the present crisis. We have out-lived that kind of thing, and are prone to smile at such ingenuous belief on the part of our forefathers; we might suggest a more dismal sidelight of the past in raising the memories of popular atrocities, of burning stakes, of iron maids and dungeons. To-day, however, we embody all that anguish in one agonising word—Economy. There's our penalty, and we are submitting to it with a vengeance. From time immemorial people too often have to pay for the sins of others; just so, we are economising to-day on our thirst and hunger for those who do not, and who are responsible for the present crisis. It would be uncharitable to wish for some retribution to fall on their heads—but who can deny the humanity of the Pagan desire?

"Sic vos, non vobis." The flock is doomed to be shorn, and in the whirligig of time this particular process, that constitutes a doubtful reciprocity between those who govern and those who are governed, will last until public spirit, at last aroused, rises to protest against such oppression and justice defines responsibilities and punishes the guilty of high treason against democracy. Meantime, we must economise, not willingly, but out of sheer necessity. The people have been shorn to the amount of 65 cents in every dollar; they must pine and suffer till a climax is reached, when the little that is left just goes to keep body and soul together. Then prayers and curses may mingle and chaos envelop the situation. We are arriving at that fast, for the fatality of the governing powers can only be compared with the patience of the governed; when we reach the level when popular forces explode, we may exclaim with the poet:—

"Unus erat toto naturae vultus in orbe."

Chaos and Ruin.

THE TRADE OF 1889.

London, March 3rd

In its usual summary for last year the Economist asserts that the price-level of 1889 was 2½ per cent over that of 1888. This is, however, questionable, being grounded altogether on the system of index-numbers, which treats the price of silk as no less important than that of wheat. Never since the reign of George II. has the price of English wheat been so low as the average for 1889. The fall since 1883 has been almost 30 per cent, the averages officially given being as follows:—

	pence per bushel

This fall is, of course, ruinous to farmers, and hence the agricultural depression is more pronounced than ever, although the Government tries hard to persuade Englishmen that Ireland is now very prosperous and that farmers are doing well. Happily, the manufacturing interests of the U. Kingdom have been as prosperous as the agricultural have been depressed. The cotton-mills consumed 17 million pounds raw cotton more than in 1888. The production of pig-iron rose by 1,020,000 tons, the home consumption shewing an increase of 860,000 tons, the exportation 160,000. Moreover, the goods traffic of the railways shews a rise of 7 per cent.

Bank-rate opened last year at 5, declined to 2½, and rose to 6 per cent in December. There had been no 6 per cent rate in England for 7 years previously. The average for the whole year was 3¾, the highest for 6 years. Silver continued to fall, reaching 41½ pence, the lowest price on record, the year's average being 42⅝ pence. Among the foreign loans of 1889 were several of conversion by Russia and Argentina, besides new railway loans up to 10 millions sterling in the Argentine Republic The Economist states that railway loans for various countries last year summed up 24 millions sterling. There were 70 new mining companies started, with a total capital of 4 millions sterling; and a lot of new breweries absorbed no less than 28 millions.

The importation of meat was remarkable last year for very high quotations, New Zealand mutton rising to 6¾ pence. In Messrs. J. Weddel's circular it is said that the Argentines promise to export 1,500,000 frozen sheep in 1890, but this is doubted, as it is now believed that instead of 100 million sheep the flocks hardly count 70 millions, and the influx of immigration will cause such an increase of consumption as to reduce the surplus for shipment.

LONDON LETTER

(From our own Correspondent.)

THE RED SPECTRE.

Feb. 22.

All subjects lose interest in face of the German elections The returns come in slowly, but sufficient is known to give us the assurance that the "electioneering dodge" has roused the German Socialists into a full consciousness of their power. The Socialist triumph in the new Empire, to which Lord Salisbury was inclined to attach the waning hopes of English conservatism, as a punt is dragged at the side of a man-of-war, is the knell of the old European system. It is not that because the Socialist vote in the great cities of Germany has risen within the last few years from tens of thousands into hundreds of thousands, and now into millions, that we expect a political millennium, or to awake some fine morning and find our hot water coming in automatically and our boots cleaning themselves accompanied by appropriate music supplied by the State, as in Mr. Bellamy's glorified Boston. There is no utopianism in modern Socialism, and the same kind and of course perfectly sane young Emperor who encouraged Socialism with his Rescripts, provided an antidote on the day of the elections. On that day of all others he insisted upon having one of his "surprise drills". The Socialists and the troops hustled one another as they went on their respective ways, some to vote down capital and private property, the props of modern empires and monarchies, and others to show their beloved Kaiser how quickly they could shove on their accoutrements, shoulder their bayonets and be ready for any service, at home or abroad, his will might decree.

There is also another question in store. You will receive by telegraph a completed return of the German elections long before this reaches you; and you are likely to see that the gains are on the side of the Socialists and Radicals (Freisinnigen) and that the Conservatives and National Liberals have lost. That means that the Cartel party, through which Prince Bismarck has recently governed the Reichstag, is exterminated. The majority is now with the Centre, including the Ultramontanes. It would now be a vulgarism to reproach Prince Bismarck with going to Canossa, after his declaration that nothing would induce him to submit to that humiliation. We know he went, and that he despises political consistency and veracity as virtues fit only for fools. The Pope warned him that if he is to combat Socialism he must lean on the Church. The Chancellor preferred to lean on repressive legislation and bayonets. So far these devices have failed, and now the momentous choice is again before him. We can leave the Emperor and his Chancellor to make their choice. It does not immediately concern us. The Socialistic triumph in the German elections is of more consequence to countries politically more civilized than Germany. Until now there were many, perhaps the great majority, who affected to take no interest in Socialism, treating it as a chimera and ridiculing those who warned them it was a growing force that would have to be dealt with even in free-trading England and republican America.

I send you a fragment of an article from the Morning Post, and I could send you one even from the Times of to day and another from that contemptible little "bourgeois" paper the Echo to show the altered tone of the average English mind on this subject. I was even astonished to find in one of the most Conservative, one of the newest and one of the best of our high class weeklies, the Scot's Observer, a sympathetic review of the "Fabian Essays." All I want to impress upon men of business who think dollar-hunting and dividend-receiving agencies, so beneficent in their results during the last fifty years, must necessarily continue, that it is not a question between the "haves" and "have nots," as they have been taught by silly newspapers and superficial thinkers; but a question of natural economic evolution that we may like or may not like, but must submit to its operations; and the more even, as a Government or as an individual, we strive to arrest the growth by force or inadequate legislation, the greater will be the danger of the catastrophes that are necessarily part of the natural operation of causes under new conditions. That much it delights me to see the English Press acknowledge, whilst under the terror of the German Socialist vote; but we all know that men have their particular instincts, and if to-morrow the German artillery is turned successfully against the Socialists, there will be a cry of triumph here amongst the same class of animals who are for the moment cowed by the Socialist vote of Berlin, Hamburg, Magdeburg, Dresden, Leipsig, and even cities in Alsatia, and in nearly all the manufacturing centres of Germany. Those who think Mr. Balfour's policy has been successful in Ireland can compare it with Prince Bismarck's success in Germany. The position of affairs in Germany has already a damping effect upon the discussions in our Parliament and smothers the vivacious bark of Mr. Goschen and makes Mr. Smith still more nervous when called upon to say if witnesses in the Parnell Commission are to be paid by the Government! The battle of the "Report" still goes on, but the mean subterfuge of claiming a victory for the unionists on the plea that certain of the Irish leaders are guilty of encouraging the absolute independence of the Irish nation and of inciting to agrarianism—meaning the extinction of the landlords—the "English garrison"—succeeds only with the stupid who can be persuaded that such were the "crimes" the Commission was set to investigate. Those were not the crimes, nor can they in a political sense be called crimes. The English people were taught that the Irish leaders were the abettors of assassins. The Times' forged letters were printed to prove that. The Report says those things are not true, and no one cares about the rest.

Many people, they tell me, at the district post office, have complained as well as myself that the Genoa mails are not in the official lists. They are not there yet. If you receive nothing by the Italian mails, you know the reason why.

THE ACONCAGUA'S MAILS

London, March 8th.

A bill to regulate the sale of liquors at railway stations was at the instance of Earl Beauchamp, read a first time in the House of Lords yesterday.

In the House of Commons Mr. T.H. Bolton (Gladstonian) took his seat for North St. Pancras in the place of Mr. Cochrane-Bailie, now Lord Lamington (Conservative). The debate on Mr. W. H. Smith's motion respecting the Report of the Special Commission was resumed by Mr. Justin M'Carty and continued by Sir Henry James, Mr. Asquith, and Mr. Charles Hall. Mr. Wallace rose to carry on the discussion, when the House was "counted out" at a quarter to nine o'clock. Before the resumption of the debate on Mr. W.H. Smith's motion, Mr. Jennings gave notice that he would propose to add a rider.

A long discussion took place at the meeting of the London County Council respecting the construction of a tunnel underneath the Thames at Blackwall. Objectors alleged that it would cost £1,250,000, which, for an experiment, was far too much. The debate was adjourned for a week.

Shareholders in Allsopp's Brewery Company met in Cannon-street Hotel, under the presidency of Lord Hindlip, and appointed a committee of seven gentlemen, holding over £1000 worth of stock each, to investigate the present position of the concern.

According to the Board of Trade returns for February, the imports showed a decrease of £1,321,254 as compared with the corresponding month last year, and the exports an increase of £2,413,876.

Mr. Abington's Quicksand won the March Hurdle Handicap at Leicester, Mr. R. Corbett's Mintridge, the Harrington Hunters' Steeplechase, and Mr. C. J. Cunningham's Sir Herbert the Hunters' Hurdle Race.

In the Probate Court Sir James Hannan and a jury finished the case in which the will of the late Mr William Ferrand, ex-M. P., drawn up in 1882, was challenged by his daughter and granddaughter, who were not benefited under it, on the grounds of insanity and undue influence. The document was in favour of the deceased gentleman's nephew. After hearing the evidence of many witnesses the jury pronounced for the will.

Eliza Ann Fitzhugh, teacher of music, was sentenced at the Central Criminal Court to one month's imprisonment for obtaining money by false pretences.

More general firmness prevailed in the Stock Markets. Some English railways advanced, while others receded. American lines, except Readings, improved, and Grand Trunks were better. Mexican (Vera Cruz), however, showed no movement. Nearly all the leading foreign Government bonds closed higher. Consols were unchanged.

Railway Items

The pious retirement in which all the Government departments are steeped in consequence of Holy Week rendered it impossible to extract any items from those quarters yesterday, and the fact is the only item of interest was the strike of the Western Railway engine-drivers. In spite of the strike, however, the service of the trains was quite regular. The strike is due to the detention of two drivers and the refusal of the authorities to release them. Several scenes of violence are reported, owing to the interference of the police. But the movement amounts to nothing, since, as already stated, the service continues uninterrupted. However, this strike may assume ugly proportions. Last evening an engine-driver called on us and in the name of his fellow-drivers requested us to state that if the Western Railway Board refuse to release and restore to their former position the imprisoned drivers, the engine-drivers of the Great Southern Railway, Ensenada Railway, B. Ayres and Rosario Railway, Pacific Railway and Northern Railway will strike. This is a very serious threat. It is not right that the public should suffer, and they will unquestionably suffer if the drivers carry out their threat.

We learn from our newsy contemporary the Amigo del Pueblo of Concordia, that the section from Monte Caseros to Curuzu-Cuartia is to be opened to traffic this month.

The amalgamation of the city tramways is confirmed by the following item which we clip from the Railway Times of the 8th ult.:

"Argentine Tramway Amalgamation.—We are informed that arrangements have now been completed for the amalgamation of the following tramway companies, viz.: The City of Buenos Aires Tramways Company, Limited, the Anglo-Argentine Tramways Company, Limited, the Buenos Aires and Belgrano Tramways Company, Limited, and the Central Tramways of Buenos Aires. Meetings of shareholders will shortly be convened, at which the provisional arrangements entered into by the directors of the respective companies will be submitted for approval."

From the same exchange we take the following:—

In Foreign Railways Argentine issues have been stronger on a fall in the gold premium to 143½, and Buenos Ayres and Valparaiso has risen 3, Argentine Great Southern debenture stock, and North Western of Uruguay second preference 1, and Sambre and Meuse preference and Mexican ordinary ½.

The Malagueño Railway opens on the 15th inst. its branch from kil. 2, on the main line, to a junction with the Central Argentine Railway at Ferreira Station. Malagueño line, of which there are some 100,000 tons ready for export, at Ferreira Station, keeps this railway working.

There is no truth in the recent telegram published by us according to which a number of Argentine Railway employees were about to resign. The only foundation for the telegram was the retirement of one employee owing to ill-health. Distance develops news.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

No cyclone, after all! The whole predicted blue ruin resolved itself into an old-womanly, gingham—umbrella shower of rain on Friday, and a deluge on that night and yesterday morning. So heavy was it that many people rushed off to the Boca before breakfast yesterday, expecting to see it under water, and that they would have to dive to find it. The funny part of the business was that the barometer kept rising, thus reassuring timid people as to the dreaded cyclone.

In place of the cyclone, the Prensa supplied the public with a moral tornado about Free Bank abuses that fairly tore up by the roots the last shred of public confidence. It's simply awful; and men's hair stood on end so suddenly when reading the tremendous revelations of our colleague, that their hats first flew into the air and then rolled in the mud—like the credit of the Free Banks in question.

Never were the city churches more crowded before in Holy Week than on Thursday, but the rain on Friday spoiled everything, and the streets were as deserted as during the Easter of the Plague in 1870. It was remarked that the sermons in nearly all the churches were of a high order of thought and eloquence, and the ceremonies were very solemn and imposing.

The wreck of the British barque Swiftsure, off the Falkland Islands, is reported. A frightful hurricane disabled her completely. The lifeboat and a raft were launched. After three hours' struggle the lifeboat was upset and the captain and first mate sank to rise no more. The survivors gained the raft and passed the night on it. Next morning they were picked up by the "Cuidad de Cabos" and landed at Sandy Point, from whence they have returned to Montevideo in a Pacific steamer. One of the rescued crew is in this city, waiting for a ship to go home.

The Entertainment Session of the English Literary Society for the year 1890 will be inaugurated on Wednesday next by the President, the Revd. J. H. Gybbon Spilsbury, who will deliver a lecture on "Folklore and Myths, with especial reference to the New World." The subject is interesting and should attract a large audience. We are requested by the Hon. Secretary to state that the Committee will always be glad to see Ladies at these entertainments.

The Committee of the National Hippodrome met late last evening and postponed the races to be held to-day to next Wednesday (weather permitting).

According to a contemporary, the Lincolnshire Handicap was won by Johnny O'Neill's "The Rejected," Shimmer being second and Lord George third. The weights were 8 st. 11 lb., 7 st. 1 lb. and 7st. 3 lb. respectively. This was, indeed, a good performance on the part of the six-year old son of King of Trumps and Accepted, who was always a flyer over six furlongs, but whose ability to stay a mile in good company has never previously been conclusively proved.

The exchange shop men refused to sell gold yesterday at any price, though 175 premium was the nominal. "Not if you were to kiss, kick, or kill me" was the answer of a "cambista" to an old customer who asked him for a paltry thousand dollars at any price he liked to name.

There is a registered letter in the Post Office for Mr. John Netterfield.

We beg to thank Messrs. C. M. Huergo and Co., the well-known steamship agents, for kindly sending us late English papers, received by the Houston liner Heraclides, Captain Dover, which made a fine run out of 22 days from Liverpool.

Venerable Dom Pedro is reported to be better, and to have gone to Cannes to recruit. He is said to be very hard up for hard cash, and persists in keeping up the semblance of a court and a lot of expenses which he is quite unable to afford.

The maize crop round about Mercedes, which is enormous, is in danger of being lost for wants of hands to cut it. So much for what our London colleagues are pleased to call "The Antics of the Gold Premium."

We salute our new Cordoba colleague La Defensa, and wish it success. It is an out-and-out P. A. N. paper. The only news we can find in it is that the City of Doctors is now infested with Turks, Arabs, Bohemians, and nice, clean immigrants generally.

The National Government did not distribute the usual Holy Week alms this year; neither was there a jail delivery. The latter omission is decidiy to be applauded; not so the former, hard though the times be.

Something disagreeable is supposed to have occurred in San Juan as well as Mendoza when the Governor of Cordoba dropped in there on a short visit. Particulars are expected by post, as telegrams giving too much information were "fiscalized" and could not be sent.

The gentlemen who have the wooden pavement contract for the city evidently believe in Lord Mayor Seeber and his 20 millions loan, as they have offered to pave Avenida Alvear with wood and wait for payment of the Municipality's share of the cost till times mend. It is said that aristocratic Calle Florida will also be paved with wood on the same liberal condition.

Another blunder. The latest order from the Immigration Office is that immigrants are to be whipped ashore as fast as possible and their luggage to come after them. This precious order will give every facility for the old abuse—the loss of the poor immigrants belongings.

Mr Julio Victorica's Report on Argentine Agriculture, addressed to the Minister of the Interior, is very interesting, and we advise all farmers to get it and read it.

The threatened strike of the engine-drivers on the provincial railways came off on Thursday but was only a half-and-half affair. Some few La Plata trains were delayed. The engine-drivers on the Southern Railway were appealed to, to save the situation, but refused. For further particulars see Railway Items.

There is always some nonsense or something theatrical or childish about our public displays here. The R. S. Exhibition at Palermo is to have a Children's Corso as one of its attractions. Would it not be more sensible to leave the young fry at their studies, instead of distracting their attention in this foolish way?

The Rioja papers warmly welcome back Governor Gonzalez from Buenos Aires. So far as we can gather, H.E. went back loanless.

The Passionist Fathers will open a mission in San Antonio on April 20th. On Sunday 13th one of the Passionist Fathers will be in Chascomus.

Riding on the Pacific Railway line, at least in the vicinity of the Chacarita, is rather a risky business. There is a flagman named Sacco about there who, the other day, "sacó su rewolwers," and let fly at an equestrian who was rather slow about obeying his order to get off the track. Fortunately, Signor Sacco is a wretched shot and couldn't hit a haystack at ten paces distance; nevertheless, to prevent accidents, it would be advisable for the Company to "give him the sack," "cuanto antes."

The Entre Rios Dominies are now learning to fast, and will soon be as good hands at it as those of Santa Fe, who have learned the art by bitter experience. At Nogoya the State school teachers have not seen a cent of their salaries for seven months.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's

CHLORODYNE

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE

Advice to Invalids—If you wish to obtain quiet refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish, to calm and assuage the weary achings of protracted disease, invigorate the nervous media and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by D. J. Collis Brown, (late Army Medical Staff), to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, January 5 1880. To J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33, Great Russel Street, Bloomsbury, London. Dear Sir,—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the widespread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself, not only in Hindostan; but all over the East. As a remedy for general utility, we must question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other errands, we are so sorry to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances "ad infinitum" of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative that have occurred under our personal observation during many years, In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's from a firm Conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate Breach of Faith on the part of the Chemist to prescribe and Patient alike. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, Symes and Co., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain. (Its Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.

Caution.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated that Dr J Collis Browne, was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of Chlorodine; that the story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, which he regretted to say, had been sworn to,—See "The Times," July 13, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1 1/2d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.

Caution.—Beware of Piracy and Imitations.

transfer of the company; but owing to the carefuln ess of our agent and lawyers in Buenos Aires in getting the title into perfect order (for the deeds date back to a Government grant in the year 1777) the date fixed for completion—namely, December 10—was found too short, but on Jan. 2 of this year the cablegram "transfer completed" came to hand. The payment of the property was met by £21,000 out of the £30,000 subscribed in the Argentine Republic, the balance being provided by means of a credit which we opened with the London and River Plate Bank, the necessary funds being deposited with the office here. The remainder of the Argentine funds is available to meet the liability we are under for the purchase of stores, and for working capital. Having got this length, we telegraphed the other side to carry on the business as heretofore, leaving it to the officials there to make the best results by working on the old system until such time as we could get out the necessary machinery for the preparation of extract of meat, which is one of the main objects of the company, and by means of which, or the export of fresh meat, the Government guarantee is to become available. Notwithstanding the high premium on gold, the recent success of the various joint-stock banks, as shown in statements lately published, has been most encouraging. And how will the depreciation in the paper currency affect us? Contracts for cattle are made in paper money, and portions of the produce sold for gold as well as for paper money. What has to be feared most is the fluctuation, but, with due care, there should be little difficulty in carrying on operations without any great risk. Those interested in this undertaking have, no doubt, seen with much satisfaction that the leading foreign meat companies which have been established for some time have been most successful. One of the foremost is that engaged in the extract of meat trade, to which we intend to apply ourselves. Mr. John McCall, who is well known in the preserved provision trade, and who has advised us on several occasions, speaks hopefully of the future of this article, and I take this opportunity of thanking him for services which have been most valuable to us. You will doubtless have seen that "a syndicate is being formed for the shipment of meat from South America to Liverpool. The undertaking, it is said, is being carried out by a gentleman who was the promoter of two large companies now shipping meat from America, and paying large dividends." The trade is in its infancy, and there is no doubt that the important Republic in South America with which we are engaged is likely to increase largely the food supplies of Great Britain in the shape of fresh and preserved meats, as well as of live cattle. Before closing, I would like to add that we are seeing to a Stock Exchange quotation, and the necessary instructions have been given to our broker with this object.

Mr. Henry B. Hart asked whether any business had been done by the company up to the present.

The Chairman said the company's agents on the other side had deemed it necessary to let the factory, in order for the manager to come to this country and see to getting the best machinery for the preparation of extract of meat. As would have been seen from the comments he made on Mr. Wallace's telegram, everything would be done to commence the old business, as well as the new one, for the incoming season; and, looking at the successes which had attended businesses of this description, the directors were hopeful that there was a fair future before the company.

Mr. Herbert Price said he would like to know how the matter of the Stock Exchange quotation stood. It seemed to him very desirable that they should get a quotation for this company; and many shareholders were, he thought, somewhat disappointed that apparently nothing had been done in that direction up to the present time.

The Chairman said the papers for the Stock Exchange quotation had been in the hands of their brokers for a little time, and r. Hart would, he was sure, be happy to explain. He had no doubt that everything was being done that could be.

Mr. W. H. Hart said it had been necessary to go through a large amount of detail work to place the matter before the Committee of the Stock Exchange. It was, of course, impossible to say what decision the Committee might come to, but he had very little doubt in his own mind what it would be. Very often it took companies six or twelve months to get a quotation, and he did not think in their case any time had been lost, but that they took steps at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. H. B. Hart moved a vote of thanks to the chairman.

Mr. G. Walker, secretary of the International Trustee, Assets and Debenture Corporation, Limited, seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The Chairman thanked the shareholders, and said the board would endeavour to do their best in the interest of the company.

The proceedings then terminated.

American Whiskey.
DECKER'S
ABSOLUTELY PURE
This mild, mellow and delicious Whiskey is distilled from the finest growth of carefully selected Rye grain and Barley malt. It is a marvel of wholesomeness, excellence and evenness of quality, unequalled by any Whiskey in the market. It is bottled in bond for export only, is entirely free from fusil oil, possesses a natural flavor and fine tonic properties, suited exactly for the use of invalids and weak and sickly persons. It is cooling, refreshing and strengthening so pure, smooth and ripe, and agreeable to the palate as to invite the attention of connoisseurs.
